Planter, lawyer, Mexican War officer, and political leader, of Natchez, Miss. Correspondence, military papers and records, bills, receipts, notes, legal papers, scrapbook, plantation account books, and family papers. The material reflects Quitman's public service as legislator, chancellor, and Governor of Mississippi, as member of the Constitutional Convention of 1832, as officer in command of several volunteer units in the Mexican War, as civil and military governor of Mexico City (1847), and as a Member of the U. S. House of Representatives (1856-58). Much material relates to the political controversies of the time, particularly the slavery question. Other papers concern Quitman's service as Masonic grand master in Mississippi, and his interest in filibustering expeditions involving Cuba and Nicaragua. Military bodies referred to include the 1st Field Division of Volunteers, 2d Brigade of the 1st Field Division of Volunteers, 3d Brigade of the 2d Division of Volunteers, 1st Regiment of Alabama Volunteers, 1st Regiment of Georgia Volunteers, 1st Regiment of Mississippi Riflemen, 1st Regiment of New York Volunteers, 1st and 2d Regiments of Pennsylvania Volunteers, and 1st Regiment of South Carolina Volunteers. The military papers contain references to Zachary Taylor and Winfield Scott. The plantation accounts reflect the affairs of Springfield Plantation, Adams Co., Miss. The scrapbook contains clippings relating to the American or Know Nothing Party, the Southern Rights Union, Henry S. Foote, and the "Democracy of Mississippi" platform. Includes letters written by Quitman to his son, Frederick Henry Quitman (1847-53), containing family and personal news, references to a yellow fever epidemic, and a comment on Jefferson Davis during the Mexican War period.

The plantation accounts were acquired 1942, and part of the military material in 1944. The scrapbook and Quitman's letters to his son were given by Mrs. Alex Leon, 1956-58.

Lawyer and statesman, of Brandon, Rankin Co., Miss.; Governor of Mississippi and U. S. Senator. Scrapbooks pertaining to the family contain miscellaneous letters, broadsides, pictures, and clippings; many of the latter concern the Senator's political career and his death. Among the miscellaneous correspondence are a letter from M. A. McKinnon to Mrs. McLaurin concerning McLaurin's campaign for the Senate, copies of letters presented to John Hay on his appointment as U. S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James, introducing J. Burke Hendry, and a copy of a letter transmitting patent for lands granted to Mississippi for the Industrial Institute and College for Girls at Columbus. Papers of family members include several bills of sale for slaves, among them one for slaves bought from Duncan McLaurin of Simpson Co. by Daniel and John D. McLaurin in 1847. Various papers were signed by these persons and by Lauchlin McLaurin, father of the Senator. Among the volumes is a recipe book of A. J. McLaurin's wife, Laura Rauch McLaurin, prepared during 1902.

The family papers were purchased, 1944; the recipe book was acquired, 1954; the scrapbooks were given by Mrs. John McClure, 1937.

In Duke University Library.

Methodist clergyman, journalist, and leader in the prohibition movement. Diaries, correspondence, reports, minutes, journals, articles, legal papers, pamphlets, obituaries, and other papers. Main interest centers in the material reflecting Cannon's part in the Presidential campaign of 1928; the coverage is mainly for 1921-37. Much material relates to Cannon's activities in the Anti-saloon League of America, the Anti-saloon League of Virginia, the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the World League against Alcoholism, the General Conference and the Virginia Quarterly Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Methodist missionary enterprises, and world conferences of temperance groups. Other papers pertain to his leadership in the effort to unify the northern and southern branches of the Methodist Church, the Senate investigation of his expenditures in the anti-Smith campaign of 1928, his participation in a lawsuit against Randolph-Macon College, and his leadership in establishing the Lake Junaluska (N. C.) assembly grounds of the Methodist Church. Lesser groups of earlier papers relate to the founding and operation of Blackstone College for Girls, which Cannon headed (1894-1918) and his editorial work with the Baltimore and Richmond Christian advocate and its predecessor, the Southern Methodist recorder. Correspondents include Harry F. Byrd, Carter Glass, Josephus Daniels, Cordell Hull, Herbert Hoover, Frank Knox, William G. McAdoo, H. L. Mencken, Collins Denny, Gerald P. Nye, Warren A. Campbell, David, 1779-1859.

Papers of David Campbell and family, 1773-1908.

304 1/2 items and 32 v.

In Duke University Library.

Military and political leader, and merchant, of Abingdon, Va. Family, business, and political correspondence, diary, journal, account books, and other papers, mainly for 1800-69. The papers reflect Campbell's military service in the War of 1812 and with the State militia, his political activities as Governor of Virginia (1837-40) and court clerk, and his educational activities as school commissioner and as trustee of an academy and of Emory and Henry College. Includes data on religion, slavery and other public issues, mercantile pursuits, charitable institutions, methods of travel, household economy, and many other subjects. An important group of papers of Campbell's nephew, William Bowen Campbell, concerns the latter's legal education, his career as lawyer and circuit judge in Tennessee, as Indian fighter, Mexican War officer, farmer, merchant, Governor of Tennessee (1851-53), Unionist during and after the Civil War, and U. S. Representative from Tennessee. Correspondence of David Campbell's uncle, Arthur Campbell, Indian fighter and Revolutionary patriot, contains treatises on 18th-century French philosophic thought, the French Revolution, and European affairs during the Napoleonic era. Letters to Mrs. David Campbell from her father, Judge David Campbell, are of value for their data on early history and politics in Tennessee. Letters of John Campbell, Virginia and Alabama political leader and Treasurer of the U. S., contain observations on student life at Princeton University, on the Whig Party and public affairs during the Andrew Jackson period, and other matters. Letters of James Campbell, lawyer and Tennessee legislator, contain information on education, history, and politics in Tennessee, the settlement of Alabama, and the theater and dramatic literature of the period. Papers of Virginia Tabitha Jane Campbell Shelton, niece of David Campbell, discuss contemporary social, educational, and literary matters, household affairs, dress, travel, public events and issues, and life in Richmond while her uncle was Governor. Letters of the McClung and Owen families concern conditions in east Tennessee, religious leaders and revivals, and the medical education of John Owen and his sons. Other correspondents include Arthur Campbell (brother of David Campbell), Adine Turner, John Bell, William Blount, O. H. Browning, William G. Brownlow, Henry Clay, J. J. Crittenden, Jefferson Davis, L. C. Draper, J. H. Eaton, Millard Fillmore, Ephraim H. Foster, Joseph Gales, Horatio Gates, William A. Clark family.

Papers, 1764-1890.

174 items and 3 v.

In Duke University Library.

Correspondence, account books, and other papers of the family of Christopher Clark, Sr., of Albemarle Co., Va., who was an early settler (ca. 1722) of the Blue Ridge area. The papers reflect family migrations and activities in Albemarle, Louisa, and Campbell Counties, Va., where some of the sons became prominent citizens and public officials. Letters written from Georgia concern migrations and marriages in Wilkes Co. (1782-1801) and Richmond Co. (1850-80), and contain comments on the sale of lottery tickets, land surveys, slave sales and purchases, plantation life, opening of Georgia's western land, and school life at Emory College. Papers of the Revolutionary period center around Bowling Clark, who served in the Quartermaster's Dept.; there are some soldiers' letters of the War of 1812 and the Civil War. The latter discuss camp life, the need for uniforms, and the construction of the ironclad vessel Merrimack (re-named the Virginia) at Norfolk Navy Yard. The account books relate to a family distillery business in Campbell Co., Va. (1766-1800) and the medical accounts of Dr. Samuel B. Clark of Brothersville, Ga. (1846-69).

1811 items and 36 v.

In Mississippi Dept. of Archives and History.

In part, transcripts.

Papers of three families, whose seats were at Summit and Yazoo City, Miss., New Orleans, and elsewhere. Diaries, journals, correspondence, business papers, pictures, notes, literary and historical MSS., newspaper clippings, scrapbooks, land records, notebooks, and other papers. Chiefly the papers of the family of Oscar J. E. Stuart, of Summit; the family of Robert B. Mayes, lawyer and probate judge of Yazoo City and Yazoo Co.; and the family of John Bull Smith Dimitry, Confederate veteran, author, historian, and journalist, of New Orleans. Grouped in 3 files: correspondence, MSS., and clippings. The largest group of letters dates from the 1860's. The MSS. consist of reminiscences of Florence Bowmar Carson about Vicksburg, Miss., and Oasis Plantation, Coahoma Co., Miss.; notes and MSS. of John B. S. Dimitry and his wife, née Adelaide L. Stuart, an author who used the pseud. Martha Goodwyn; notes and MSS. of Adelaide E. Mayes, who wrote under the pseud. Dorothy Dempell; political and religious notes and essays of Robert B. Mayes and Robert B. Mayes III; and notes and essays of Oscar J. E. Stuart (many of the latter being fragments). The clippings (1878-1911) are largely obituaries of Alexander and John B. S. Dimitry, and newspaper articles by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. S. Dimitry. Among the 36 v. are Memoirs of Vicksburg, by F. B. Carson; Oasis, a Mississippi plantation fifty years ago, by F. B. Carson; These were my homes, by F. B. Carson; an unidentified diary and a diary of Adelaide E. Mayes; notebooks, legal notebooks, and land record indexes of Robert B. Mayes; in all generations, poems by Robert B. Mayes III; Aunt Ann's boys: memorials of James Oscar, and Edward Stuart, three soldiers of the Army of Northern Virginia, copies of letters edited by Robert B. Mayes, Jr.; and a group of notebooks and scrapbooks of John M. Clark, O. Ewing Stuart, J. B. S. Dimitry, and Oscar J. E. Stuart. Includes "Lichenhurst journal," by R. B. Mayes (covering 1886-89). Among the family members and correspondents represented are Miss S. J. E. Hardeman (Mrs. Oscar J. E. Stuart), Adelaide L. Stuart (Mrs. J. B. S. Dimitry), Annie E. Stuart, Edward Stuart, James H. Stuart, Oscar Ewing Stuart, Daniel Mayes, Cynthia Bowmar, Alexander Dimitry, Mary Powell Mills (Mrs. Alexander Dimitry), Florence Bowmar Carson, John B. S. Dimitry, Ann L. Hardeman, Ellen L. Letters from Kemper's wife, Cremora Conway (Cave) Kemper, and several of their children discuss, among other things, the education and finances of one son and the disappearance and death of another. Papers of the ante bellum period relate to issues before the Virginia House of Delegates during Kemper's service as a legislator: reorganization of the State militia, several national and State political campaigns, Virginia railroads, and the Virginia Military Institute. Material of Civil War interest includes discussions of the State's unpreparedness for war, subsistence and stores, conscription and impressment, manpower problems, troop movements, tactical and strategical command decisions, the raising and provisioning of militia units, battles and battlefields of Second Manassas and Antietam, and Kemper's participation in the Battle of Gettysburg. Civil War leaders referred to include Ambrose P. Hill, Jubal A. Early, S. T. Stuart, Philip St. George Cocke, C. D. Dimmock, James Longstreet, J. E. B. Stuart, George Edward Pickett, Lewis A. Armistead, Jeremiah Morton, N. T. Patton, Fitzhugh Lee, Alexander H. Stephens, Ulysses S. Grant, John S. Mosby, Philip Sheridan, William T. Sherman, Robert A. Banks, Robert E. Lee, Fitz-John Porter, and others. Much material relates to the Reconstruction period, fiscal and debt-paying policies, Kemper's gubernatorial campaign, public issues while he was in office, law practice, land and mineral speculation, Federal troops in the West and South, education, and memorials to Civil War heroes.

Correspondence, drafts, reports, documents, notes, articles, speeches, legal papers, bills, receipts, pamphlets, memorabilia, scrapbook, clippings, and other material, relating to all phases of Buchanan's career. Some papers pertain to his early career as an attorney, others to his business investments, Democratic politics in Pennsylvania and the Nation, Buchanan's diplomatic service as Minister to Russia (1832-33) and England (1854-58), his period as Secretary of State (1845-49), as Member of Congress, and as President (1857-61). Much material reflects the growing antagonism between North and South before the Civil War; other papers concern controversies during Buchanan's administration, notably the Post Office blank printing dispute (1857-60) and Buchanan's controversy with General Winfield Scott. Includes biographical material and writings by Buchanan concerning his administration, papers relating to the Democratic Convention of 1856, and records pertaining to several legal cases, notably the impeachment of Federal Judge Peck (1850-51). Includes letters from Simon Cameron, John W. Forney, John Sibley, Benjamin H. Brewster, Jeremiah Black, Nahum Capen, William B. In University of Virginia Library (4251)

Papers of the related families, of New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Vermont; and genealogical and other papers relating to the Edwards, Hockley, Hopkins, Pomeroy, Warner, and Whiting families. The Baker papers include correspondence, certificates, diplomas, and other material of Charles Whiting Baker, engineer, economist, and civic leader; his wife, Rebekah Wheeler Baker; their son, Charles Whiting Baker, Jr.; and Lucy Baker, a music teacher. The elder Baker's correspondence (1800-41) concerns public affairs, including the Panama Canal, British-American relations in both World Wars, business conditions, and the Japanese threat to peace in the 1890's. Of particular interest is his correspondence with William Howard Taft, in which the President reveals his views on controversies and issues of his administration, including the Taft-Ballinger dispute. The Wheeler papers include receipts (1763) of Aaron Wheeler of Mason, N. H.; papers of Lewis H. Wheeler containing information on the Civil War in Maryland and the Baltimore riots (1862); a letter of Mary O. Wheeler (1903) relating details of the payment by John B. Papers of the Cabell and Ellet families, 1830-1930.

6 ft.

In University of Virginia Library (276)

Correspondence, diaries, and other papers of Mary Virginia Ellet Cabell, her father Charles Ellet, Jr., civil engineer, of Philadelphia, and her husband, William D. Cabell, of Norwood, Nelson Co., Va., relating mainly to Mrs. Cabell's career as author and civic leader. Includes approximately 1000 letters from Mrs. Cabell to her children Elvira Daniel Cabell, Margaret Cabell, Nina Cabell, and Mayo Cabell; biographical and genealogical data on the Cabell and Ellet families; material on Norwood School, conducted by William D. Cabell; correspondence and printed matter concerning the U. S. S. Switzerland, the U. S. S. Island Queen, and other vessels, in the Mississippi Ram Fleet during the Civil War; and data on the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Cabell was president. Personal correspondence contains observations on Paris during the Revolution of 1830; the Fugitive slave law; political leaders Henry Clay, Lewis Cass, and John C. Calhoun, and conditions leading to the Civil War; the naming of Charles Sumner by Preston Brooks; David G. Farragut's abilities as a Navy commander; and the settling of William D. Cabell's estate. Correspondents include George Barber, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, Charles Davies, William E. Dodd, Loyall Farragut, Don P. Halsey, A. Moore, Edwin M. Stanton, and Robert Whitehead. Related to the library's William Daniel Cabell papers, Joseph C. Cabell papers, and its other Cabell collections.

Clopton family.

Papers of the Clopton and Wallace families, 1629-1915.

11,748 items and 19 v.

In Duke University Library.

Family correspondence and miscellaneous papers of 4 generations of the Clopton family, and 3 generations of the Wallace family, centering in Virginia. The earlier papers are genealogical records. Papers of John Clopton, Virginia legislator and U. S. Representative (1795-99, 1801-16) contain comments on politics in the Jeffersonian Republican Party, the Continental Congress, Jay's treaty, the Alien and Sedition acts, the Embargo act, and American relations with France. Letters to a son, John Bacon Clopton, Virginia judge, relate to operation of a plantation in New Kent Co. Correspondence of Charles Montriau Wallace, Sr., a Richmond merchant, includes accounts of an overland journey to California (1849) and subsequent residence there, Confederate trade with Nassau and England, Reconstruction in the South, the writer's early life in Richmond, politics in Richmond and Virginia, travels in England, Scotland, and the South, and other matters. Other letters are from Wallace relatives in England and Scotland. Of interest also are Civil War letters from William Izard Clopton, and others from Maria Foster Clopton (wife of John B. Clopton). Letters from a Richmond commission firm concern wartime and postwar business conditions. Includes several memorandum books, scrapbooks, account books, legal casebooks; journals of trips to California, Texas, and England; records of an unidentified temperance society; and financial records of a teacher.

Public official, Indian agent, and Territorial Governor of Utah (1857-61). Family and political correspondence, mainly of the 1850's, with material on Mormon history, including the "Mormon War," and on frontier and pioneer life. Includes journals, scrapbooks, letter books, and proceedings pertaining to councils and negotiations with the Blackfoot Indians and other tribes (1855). Letters of Cumming's wife, Elizabeth Wells (Randall) Cumming, describe incidents of her trip to Utah with her husband when he was named Governor, with details of frontier conditions and Indian troubles. Cumming's official letter books contain correspondence to James Buchanan, Lewis Cass, Howell Cobb, John B. Floyd, Albert S. Johnston, Brigham Young, and others. Additional correspondents include W. W. Bibb, J. S. Black, William Medill, B. F. Perry, Franklin Pierce, Alexander H. Stephens, and G. M. Troup. Includes papers of William Clay Cumming, a brother, pertaining to his studies at Princeton University (1805) and at the Litchfield Law School, operated by Tapping Reeve; his accounts of opposition to Federalism in New England; and his experiences as an officer in the War of 1812; accounts of his travels in the Mississippi Valley and the South; and a few comments on Brazil and Uruguay (visited in 1816). Includes some papers of Thomas Cumming.

Clarke, Adam, 1760?-1832.

Papers, 1743-1875.

209 items.

In Duke University Library.

Methodist clergyman and theologian. Letters and other papers by and about Clarke, mainly dating from 1783-1851. The letters, chiefly from Clarke to his wife, Mary Cook Clarke, his son and literary executor, Joseph B. B. Clarke, and his daughter and biographer, Mary Ann Clarke Smith, cover the entire period of Clarke's ministry. They relate to Clarke's association with John Wesley and the Wesleyan Methodist Church, to the ministerial work of Wesley, Thomas Coke, and George Whitefield, the hymns of Charles Wesley, Clarke's editorial work on Thomas Rymer's Federa, British reaction to the French Revolution, missionary work in Palestine and the Shetland Islands, travel in Great Britain, and the impact of industrialization on England. Later papers deal with the publication of An account of the infancy, religious and literary life of Adam Clarke (1833) and with the efforts of George John Stevenson, author, to discover the letters of Clarke and Wesley. Among the correspondents are William Bramwell, Joseph Butterworth, John Clarke, Theodore Clarke, Thomas Coke, John Cole, Mercy Doddridge, Jonathan Edmondson, Joseph Entwisle, Marmaduke Gwynne, Thomas Latham, George Marsden, Henry Moore, Mary Anne Moore, George Morley, Lawyer, minister, legislator, and Confederate officer, of Jasper Co., Miss. Correspondence, largely between Absalom and Susan (Millsaps) Dantzler, especially while he was in the legislature and in the Army. Dantzler's letters reflect state legislative procedure of the secession period and the first years of the Civil War, and give information on camp life and the Battles of Iuka and Corinth. Susan Dantzler's letters concern home and family matters, with occasional remarks about Negro misbehavior in the community. One of the early letters (1849) describes conditions in California during the gold rush; another (1855) analyzes the platform of the Know-Nothing Party and discusses immigration. Includes a number of addresses given Dantzler while at Centenary College in Louisiana.

In University of North Carolina Library, Southern Historical Collection (no. 1412)

Business and personal correspondence, and legal, financial, and military papers of five generations of the Dabney family of Virginia. Beginning in the 1830's the papers are chiefly of Robert Lewis Dabney, Presbyterian clergyman, teacher, author, and Confederate chaplain, who was associated with Hampden-Sydney College and the Union Seminary of Virginia; of his brother; of the James Morrison family into which Dabney married in 1848; and of his son Charles William Dabney, scientist, educator, and author, who held State and Federal Government positions in the field of chemistry and agriculture and who was president of the University of Tennessee (1887-1904) and of the University of Cincinnati (1904-20). Robert Dabney's papers include letters to his wife during the Civil War and papers regarding his biography of Thomas J. Jackson. Charles Dabney's papers reflect his wide range of professional activities and public service in addition to his specific institutional positions and writings. They relate to such topics as international affairs, national defense and world peace, education in the South and in Mexico, agricultural and scientific education, mineral resources in Alabama, Texas, and North Carolina, and Dabney family history. Correspondents include William James Battle, Wallace Buttrick, Frank R. Chambers, Philip P. Claxton, Clarence H. Dodd, E. L. Doheny, J. D. Eggleston, Parke P. Flournoy, Jr., James D. Hoskins, John McLaren McBryde, Alexander J. McKelway, James Morrison, R. Hall Morrison, Edward Pearson Moses, Robert C. Ogden, Walter Hines Page, George F. Peabody, Henry S. Pritchett, Edward T. Papers of George P. Buell and John S. Brien, 1805-1943.

15 ft. (ca. 10,000 items)

In Tennessee State Library and Archives.

Correspondence, diaries, military papers, legal documents, account books, bills, receipts, scrapbooks, photos., and memorabilia. The military papers (mainly those of George P. Buell, civil engineer and Army officer) date largely from 1870-82 and are composed of general and special orders, ordnance reports, telegrams, endorsement books, court martial records, account books, and maps, covering Buell's career during the Civil War and during his later operations against the Indians west of the Mississippi, together with order books of General Don Carlos Buell (1818-1898). The largest portion of the non-military items is the papers of Judge John Smith Brien, father-in-law of George P. Buell, containing correspondence, legal documents and briefs dealing with Brien's cases, and docket books giving the schedules of cases while he served as Circuit Court Judge of Davidson Co., Tenn. from 1857-61. Includes papers relating to the family and ancestry of George P. Buell, to silver mines in Colorado, and to Buell's railroad business; letters and papers of his brother Salmon A. Buell, some of which deal with the perpetual calendar, an invention of his; correspondence of John F. Lane; diary of Mary Foot Lane; correspondence and diary of Rochetta Brien Buell (Mrs. George P. Buell); correspondence of their son Don Carlos Buell; diary and memoirs of Rochetta Howard Brien (Mrs. John S. Brien); and much correspondence of the Pickett sisters: Lida (Mrs. Theodore Caskins), Alice (Mrs. Albert Akers), and Lucy, who were reared by their aunt, Mrs. Brien. Correspondents include Albert Akers, H. B. Bascom, John Bell, W. G. Brownlow, Ann Lane Buell, Don C. Buell, Robert Caruthers, R. M. Corwin, J. W. Dobbs, Ephraim Foster, M. P. Gentry, E. M. Papers, 1828-98.
150 items.

In the Strafford (Vt.) Historical Society Library.
Statesman and financier. Correspondence (chiefly letters written to Morrill), Congressional bills, acts, and speeches, notes, clippings, pamphlets, and papers relating to Morrill's personal life in Vermont. The papers cover primarily the period (1855-98) when Morrill was a U. S. Representative and Senator from Vermont, and reflect Morrill's interest in the tariff, in buildings and grounds in Washington, D. C., and in the land-grant colleges. The papers on trade and the tariff include statistics on Hawaiian trade (1860-69) prepared by Francis Amasa Walker, and material on wool production in the U. S. and on the impingements on trade of the monetary policies of the U. S. Includes several items relating to Morrill's association with Cyrus W. Field and John E. Ward over the proposed cable to China (ca. 1870); correspondence (1878) with Joseph Wharton, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Industrial League of Philadelphia, concerning the organization of a congressional committee, headed by Morrill, to investigate customs duties, and the placing of a resolution for such before Congress; and letters (1894) from U. S. and English astronomers in criticism of the U. S. Naval Observatory at Washington, which were submitted by Morrill to the Senate in an effort to reorganize the Observatory. Names of persons significant to the collection include Portus Baxter, Seth Carlo Chandler, Erastus Fairbanks, Solomon Foot, William Lawrence, Byron Sunderland, Aldace Freeman Walker, and Charles Wesley Willard.

Johnston, William Preston, 1831-1899.

Papers of William Preston Johnston and Albert Sidney Johnston, 1700-1900.

11,147 items and 80 v.
In Tulane University Library.
In part, transcripts (typewritten)
Correspondence (business and personal), diaries, business and legal papers, speeches, lectures, poetry, clippings, scrapbooks, ledgers, maps, photos., and printed matter. The earliest papers (1700-81) are typescripts of the correspondence of Capt. William Preston, a Virginia Ranger, describing the Indian War, and of the Preston, Breckinridge, and Brown families, largely to and from students attending William and Mary College. The papers of Albert Sidney Johnston include his private and official correspondence and copies of Army orders and documents from the time he was a lieutenant stationed at Jefferson Barracks until his death at the Battle of Shiloh in 1862, and cover his career as Secretary of War for the Republic of Texas, colonel in the 1st Texas Rifle Volunteers during the Mexican War, paymaster in the U. S. Army, and colonel in the 2d Cavalry. The material after 1860 centers around William Preston Johnston, lawyer, aide-de-camp to Jefferson Davis, professor of history and English literature at Washington and Lee University, president of Louisiana State University, and first president of Tulane University. Correspondents include Jefferson Davis, George Hancock, Sam Houston, and Robert E. Lee.

300 items and 5 v.
In Tennessee State Library and Archives.
Two volumes of military reminiscences of Major Campbell Brown written in 1867-69 which cover his service in the Confederate Army from 1861-68, together with a daybook of farm operations; official reports of Cross Keys, Cedar Run Mountain, Gaines Mill, Cold Harbor, and Malvern Hill; correspondence of General Richard Ewell and other Confederate officers; reports of engagements (1865) by General Ewell; a volume which contains orders of Union officers on one side of the book and Confederate letters on the other; and ca. 200 letters from Thomas T. Gantt, a St. Louis lawyer and the business agent of his cousin, Lisinka Campbell Brown Ewell, mother of Campbell Brown, who married Richard Ewell in 1865. All but 29 of these letters were written to Mrs. Ewell and contain discussions of abolition, politics, education, and other topics, as well as business matters. The rest, dating from Jan. 4 to Oct. 4, 1863, are letters to Campbell Brown on many subjects.

Townsend, Samuel, d. 1856.

Estate papers, 1827-90.

ca. 1000 items.

In Alabama University Library.

Alabama planter. Correspondence, legal documents, and other papers. Primarily concerns the estate Townsend left in 1856 to 40 of his slaves whom he emancipated by a will which was drafted and executed by S. D. Cabaniss, and contested by rival heirs. The estate was liquidated on credit for over $200,000 in 1860, but the war intervened, so the collectible funds were not distributed until the 1870's. Also concerns the education and other affairs of the legatees, their disappointed expectations, and trips on their behalf to Ohio by W. D. Chadicks, and to Kansas by Cabaniss. Includes material on the voided will of Edmund Townsend which left the bulk of his $500,000 estate to his two mulatto children.

Papers, 1893-1951.
20,000 items.
In University of Alabama Library.
In part, transcripts.
U. S. Representative and Senator from Alabama. Correspondence, speeches, press releases, biographical notes, campaign literature, photos, scrapbooks, and memorabilia. Material for the early years of Hefin's career (1893-1900), when he was engaged in local and State politics, is scarce. The scrapbooks, consisting mostly of newspaper clippings, illustrate all phases of his activities from 1895 to 1938. The speeches reflect his attitude on domestic and foreign issues such as segregation, tariff, immigration, rural free delivery, woman suffrage, the League of Nations, the Presidential campaign of 1928, and Catholicism. The correspondence is arranged chronologically in four groups: political, general, personal affairs, and outgoing letters. Correspondents include John H. Bankhead, Alben W. Barkley, William Jennings Bryan, John Nance Garner, Bibb Graves, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Carl Vinson, and Woodrow Wilson.

998 items.
In Duke University Library.
Correspondence of the West Virginia family, whose seat was at Shepherdstown, Jefferson Co. Includes letters from Henry E. Unself, a suitor of Mrs. David Billmyer, written from New Orleans (1854-55) describing the city, its theatrical and social life, and such events as the yellow fever epidemics, the rise of the Know-Nothing Party, and the Irish uprising. His letters of 1858-59 describe various sections of Missouri and Illinois. Several letters written by David Billmyer while he was in the West Virginia Legislature are more concerned with his store and family than with public issues. Other letters deal with current conditions at West Virginia Agricultural College (later West Virginia University), Georgetown College, and with Hagerstown Female Seminary during 1863-69. Subjects discussed in the family letters include religion and temperance.
